

I do not want any of the restrictions for the No Call List to be lifted. I was receiving calls not only for myself, but for 2 friends who reside overseas and use my address & phone number as their permanent stateside address. It was way out of control as I was receiving calls practically every night. Since the No Call List went into effect I get very few. If you allow the changes to go through it will start all over again. I don't have the time or patience to deal with telemarketer type phone calls every evening.
